

Conference to Decide Whether Johnson Quits

WASHINGTON — General Hugh S. Johnson, NRA chief and one of the most dynamic characters ever to appear on the Washington horizon, is on the verge of letting the Blue Eagle fly its way alone.

General Johnson has made no definite decision on this, but it is not unlikely that within the near future he will step out of the Roosevelt Administration. He expects to have a friendly but straight-from-the-shoulder conference with his Chief at Hyde Park as soon as he gets out of the hospital. Upon this will hinge his decision. The chances are strong that he will step out.

There are four factors behind the uncertainty of Johnson's future. The first three of these deal with the present economic situation which has every Administration leader with half an eye, badly worried. The pick-up of the early summer months is not continuing. The Stock Market gambled on quicker recovery, discounted inflation. Things have failed to come along as fast as everyone had expected. Specifically Johnson's friends say three things are wrong:

1. Banks have not been opened. Money has been tied up where people could not spend it. Sound banks have insisted on a high degree of liquidity. Money has been tight and there has been no appreciable stimulation of consumer buying power.

2. Agricultural commodity prices have failed to keep pace with the industrial price advance spurred on by the NRA. Professor Tugwell, just back from the midwest, has made a private report to Secretary Wallace that the farm belt is angry, rebellious.

3. Public Works, considered necessary to prime the pump of industry, have lagged.

Finally friends of both Johnson and Roosevelt say a wedge seems to have been driven in between them. Much of their old cordiality has evaporated. The President has been inclined to think that Johnson overdid the ballyhoo stuff, should have spent his time pushing adoption of codes. Coding of industry he considers to be the most important part of the Recovery Program.

As in any misunderstanding, there is a lot to be said on both sides.

Tragedy

Harry L. Hopkins, Unemployment Relief Administrator, uses an Army airplane to get to numerous out-of-town conferences he has to attend. The other day his ship encountered a terrific storm, was severely jostled, narrowly escaped crashing.

When he returned to his office his alarmed assistants congratulated him on his good fortune.

"Were you scared?" he was asked. "Well, some, of course," Hopkins answered. "But what really did break my heart was the smashing of six avocado pears I was bringing home to Mrs. Hopkins, and also something else I was bringing home for myself."

Secret Commitment

There are several reasons for putting War Debt negotiations in the hands of the Treasury rather than the State Department. But perhaps the most important reason is not being mentioned above a whisper.

That reason is the fact that during the Hoover Administration the United States was not represented. Actually Allan Dulles, one-time

Plenty of music will be provided for the opening day with both

VIRGINIA VOTES

RICHMOND, Va., Oct. 3.—The Old Dominion, once the stronghold of Bishop Cannon, Jr., and other arid apostles, went to the polls today with wet leaders predicting it would become the 32nd state to ratify the repeal of the 18th amendment. Wets were greatly encouraged by a statement from Gov. John G. Pollard, long a dry stalwart in which he announced he would vote for ratification of the repeal amendment to the constitution. Though the dries waged a bitter campaign wets claim they will have a majority ranging from 30,000 to 50,000.

Pollard urged the state to join the solid repeal wall the people have made about the 18th amendment.

NEW DISORDER SEEN IN CUBA

Welles Seeks To Protect American Lives; Executions Denied.

HAVANA, Oct. 3.—Additional measures to protect American residents of Havana were drafted by United States Ambassador Sumner Welles today owing to fears of new disorders following the National hotel battle which claimed 100 lives.

Details of the plans were not revealed, but Ambassador Welles was known to be in close contact with Washington, where a battalion of marines originally destined for Guantanamo, Cuba, was diverted to Dry Tortugas, Florida, only four hours' sailing distance from Havana.

Meanwhile, Captain Julio Velasco, chief of the La Fuerza fortress, denied reports a number of army officers who surrendered following yesterday's battle had been summarily executed.

All are being held, he said, for prosecution in the civil courts. Announcement that no executions had taken place was made as the wives of many officers besieged local newspaper offices with tearful pleas for information regarding their husbands.

The captured officers, Captain Velasco said, are not recognized as military men owing to their refusal to obey orders and return to duty following the disposal of former Provisional President Carlos Manuel De Cespedes, whom they supported.

Consequently, instead of being court-martialed, they will be tried in civilian courts.

"All officers who were killed died in action," the captain said. "None was shot as a traitor. They are being held prisoners pending trial."

SHERIFF HEADS KIWANIS CLUB

Radcliff Elected Monday Evening; John Dunlap, Jr., To Be Vice President.

Sheriff Charles H. Radcliff was elected president of the Kiwanis club, Monday evening, to succeed Sterling M. Lamb. John H. Dunlap, Jr., of Williamsport, was chosen vice president replacing Clarence Helvering.

The officers will choose a secretary in which capacity Tom A. Renick is now serving.

The club voted to support an effort to have U. S. route 22 between the Scioto river bridge and State Route 56 improved after a communication was read from Fred C. Clark. Mr. Renick, who acted as president because of the illness of Mr. Lamb, appointed John Dunlap, Sr., G. P. Hunsicker and Clarence Helvering on a committee to further the effort.

The hearing is expected to start between 9:30 and 10 a. m. with Weldon and Weldon and

2 CITIES TO VOTE

Voters of Cincinnati and East Liverpool will decide municipal ownership issues at the November 7 election. The former will decide whether the city shall own and operate gas and electric plants. After a five year rate fight the referendum was assured when the Board of Elections approved a petition. The plan is to buy the properties of the utility concern. More than 1,300 persons signed a petition for a vote on construction of a municipal electric system in East Liverpool.

Charles Gerhardt representing Niles and Ray W. Davis, prosecuting attorney, acting as counsel for the Board of Elections.

A temporary restraining order preventing the board of elections from placing the issue on the ballot has been granted by the court pending final disposition of the case.

Mr. Niles filed the injunction proceedings after the petition prepared by L. C. Hammel, Noah G. Spangler and Ward W. Robinson had been certified by Miss Lillian Young, city auditor, to the Board of Elections. Several petitions which bore a number of names of persons asking that their signatures be stricken from the initiative petition were presented to the auditor after the petition had been sent to the election board and naturally they were ignored. Mr. Niles' action claims the petition was certified one day too early to the board of elections.

BANK PRESIDENT'S ACTION IS SURPRISE

BUCYRUS, Oct. 3.—A steady eye and a little "white lie" today had felled the attempt of two would-be desperadoes to rob the Farmers Bank at Tiro, 14 miles northwest of here.

Flourishing revolvers, two bandits entered the bank yesterday and confronted Dr. W. H. Guiss, the bank president, with demands to "hand over the cash."

Coolly and calmly, Dr. Guiss eyed the bandits steadily and replied that he already had turned in the burglar alarm and that he was expecting the police at the bank "at any minute."

The bandits became frightened and fled, forgetting their intentions to stage a robbery.

Burl Hill Sent To Ohio Prison

Burl Hill, 38, colored of Maplewood-ave, pleaded guilty to a statutory charge Monday afternoon in common pleas court and was sentenced to a one to 20 year term in the Ohio penitentiary. Judge J. W. Adkins, who passed sentence, ordered the sentence be served at hard labor.

Hill was indicted by a special grand jury after charges that he had been intimate with a 14-year-old white girl were filed. He denied the indictment and was held in jail under $2,000 bond. Planning to stand trial, Hill, an indigent prisoner, asked for an attorney and William Radcliff, Williamsport, was appointed. Monday

Owens Replaces Jimmy Creedon

Transfer To Special Homicide Detail Prevents Creedon Coming Here.

After serving Circleville's Pumpkin Show as a special detective for 14 consecutive years, James Creedon, popular Columbus detective, will not be in the harness for the big event this year.

Safety Director J. Wallace Crist informed Pumpkin Show directors Monday evening that Safety Director C. C. Williams, of Columbus, had informed him Creedon would not be available. Clem Owens, another crack Columbus detective, has been loaned to the city for the Pumpkin Show, however, Owens is also reported to be an excellent detective.

Creedon and Harry Carson have been placed on a new homicide squad, effective last Sunday, and all their efforts and time will be devoted to this work.

LEGION LAUDS F.D.R.'S TALK

Four-point Program Continued, However, As Convention Progresses.

CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 3.—President Roosevelt will suffer no embarrassment from the fifteenth annual national convention of the American Legion.

That fact was apparent here today as legionnaires milled over the daring speech of the chief executive before the Legion gathering yesterday.

Curiously, few members of the veterans' organization agreed totally with the policies affecting ex-service men were enunciated by the chief executive.

Yet, among the leaders as well as the rank and file, the president undoubtedly had lost little strength.

As the veterans today went into formation for the annual convention parade, they viewed the president, who donned a Legion convention cap yesterday, as a "buddy" who spoke up in post meeting but who may be voted down not from prejudice but because of an honest difference of opinion.

The legionnaires prepared to further their four-point program, regardless of the president's views. Only a few hours after the president spoke the national rehabilitation committee had voted to continue that policy and the 125,000 men who paraded through the loop today were expected to back the committee to the limit.

DOLLFUSS HURT

DOLLFUSS HIT BY ASSASSIN

Chancellor of Austria Slightly Wounded; Ex-Soldier Held For Attack.

VIENNA, Oct. 3.—A 22-year-old ex-soldier, incensed over his dismissal from the army for Nazi activities, shot and wounded Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss in an assassination attempt today.

The assailant was identified by police as Rudolf Dertl. He stepped up to Dollfuss as the chancellor was leaving his car in front of the parliament building, pretended to hand him a petition and then opened fire. Dollfuss was wounded in the chest and arm but was able to go home swathed in bandages after emergency treatment.

After receiving congratulations from government colleagues on his lucky escape from death, Chancellor Dollfuss called a special session of his cabinet.

He was reported planning to propose drastic new measures to quell the rise of the Nazi movement in Austria—an ambition that already has won him countless enemies here and in Germany. Among the first to congratulate Dollfuss was Vice-Chancellor Major Emil Fey, who with the chancellor has been most active in suppressing Nazi agitation in this country.

Chancellor Dollfuss, for many years prominent in Austrian politics, was chosen head of a coalition cabinet on May 20, 1932, and remained as premier when the government was reorganized and reconstituted in May of this year.

Bear Kills Boy

Grief-stricken, Owner of Animal, Surrenders to Police on Manslaughter Charge.

BROOKHAVEN, N. Y., Oct. 3.—Grief-stricken, Gardiner Murdock, owner of a supposedly tame black bear which mauled and crushed 11-year-old Grant Taylor to death when the boy attempted to feed it an apple, today awaited possible grand jury action in connection with the boy's death.

Murdock, returning to his inn here after the tragedy, surrendered to authorities and was held in $1,500 bail on a charge of second degree manslaughter.

Young Taylor was killed when the bear snapped a chain by which it was tethered in the yard of Murdock's inn, chased him behind a tree, cornered him and crushed him.

Several motorists who heard the boy's screams were afraid to interfere.

Lancaster Tries to Rectify Move of Hoodlum Mob

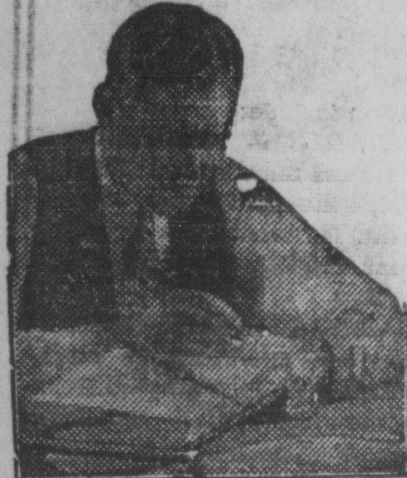

Saddened by the state of affairs that developed after the football game at Lancaster two weeks ago when Circleville automobiles were victims of a barrage of overripe fruit, Lancaster school officials have taken steps to rectify the matter.

The following letters sent to Supt. E. L. Daley and Prin. E. I. Gephart show what action the Lancaster school men and officials are taking.

Following is the copy sent to Mr. Daley:

I want you to know how much we are humiliated at the treatment given your pupils and their friends following the football game last Friday, and how much we regret this discourtesy. We want you to know that such "hoodlum" tactics have no sanction here, either among the pupils and teachers of our school, or among the city officials.

At my request, after a telephone conversation Friday afternoon with your band leader, the Chief of Police put his entire force to guard against such an occurrence. He is now making a careful investigation and will deal with the "hoodlums" if they can be apprehended.

There is only the best spirit and finest feeling here for Circleville and the splendid folks who follow your team so loyally. It will be a deep regret to us, if such stupid conduct on the part of a few should mar our agreeable and enjoyable relationship.

Permit me to commend your high school and team for the high quality of true sportsmanship shown in the game which they played so well and in such a clean manner. Who wins, is insignificant in comparison to these higher attributes of genuine sportsmanship.

Very sincerely yours,
C. H. Griffey,
Superintendent.

Following is a copy of the resolution received by Mr. Gephart, from Dean M. Hickson, Principal of Lancaster high school. This resolution was unanimously adopted by the student body of Lancaster high school in an assembly on Friday, September 29.

Be it resolved by Lancaster high school that the pupils do deeply regret the discourtesies shown the pupils and friends of Circleville high school after the football game on the night of September 22nd. That these depredations did not have the approval of the student body and do not reflect the spirit of fellowship and sportsmanship which has been most cordial and wholesome between the two schools.

That our school has always held in highest esteem the pupils and teams of Circleville high school and have looked forward each year to the game between the two schools. The splendid spirit and genial support given by friends of the visiting teams has always been commendable and cordial.

That Lancaster high school would regret to have the very pleasant relations which have existed for so many years disturbed by such treatment.

That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the Principal of Circleville high school.

Fans 11 Buffalo Batters As Birds Go Ahead in Series, 7 To 2.

BUFFALO, Oct. 3.—With the Columbus Red Birds leading 4 to 3, the Buffalo Batters sought to bring the Little World Series of the minor leagues on even terms again with a do-or-die stand tonight.

Paul Dean, sensational 20-year-old pitching flash of the Red Birds, proved too mystifying for the bewildered Bisons to solve last night as they fell before him 7 to 2.

Dean, brother of the mighty Dizzy Dean of the St. Louis Cards, struck out 11 Bison batters and allowed only three passes to first base. Ragged fielding on the part of Buffalo, including three errors, contributed to the Bisons' downfall.

If the Red Birds win tonight, they will take the Little World Series championship with the best five out of nine games.

Bucher Lost To Columbus; Holland, Chapman, Morgan To Go Up.

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—Eight major league ball clubs selected 12 players from the minors by draft at the annual major league draft meeting held here last night. Philadelphia and Brooklyn of the National league each took three players.

The Cincinnati Reds took Irving Jeffries, formerly of the Chicago Americans, who batted .343 for St. Paul in 1933.

Pitchers Davis and Darrow of San Francisco and Galveston, respectively, and Louis Chiozza, powerful Memphis hitter, went to the Phillies.

James Bucher, second baseman belonging to Columbus but who played with Greensboro this year, Glenn Chapman, Indianapolis outfielder, and Ray Berres, Birmingham catcher, will report to Brooklyn.

Other players drafted were Eddie Morgan, former Cleveland first baseman, recently with New Orleans, going to the Boston Americans; Bob Holland, Minneapolis outfielder, drafted by Cleveland, and Art Veltman, picked by Pittsburgh from Oakland.

Ohio 'Cats Face Mighty Purdue

ATHENS, Oct. 3.—Knowing that the adage of a chain being no stronger than its weakest link is particularly adaptable to the 1933 Bobcat football team, Coach Don Peden started today to iron out rough spots revealed in Ohio's 61-0 defeat of Morris Harvey.

The Bobcat mentor was able to give all but a half dozen of his squad a chance to work under fire in the season opener Saturday. With a majority of sophomores playing during the last three quarters, Peden could see just what is needed in the few heavy workouts remaining before the Purdue Boilermakers are met Saturday.

A large portion of drills this week will be devoted to pass defense as Ohio showed weakness in that department Saturday. Blocking must come in for considerable attention if the Bobcats expect to check the "wonder-backfield" of Purdue. The encounter with Purdue will find Ohio facing the strongest opposition it has ever met on the gridiron.

Ohio's showing against Purdue will depend considerably upon the showing of the sophomore backs. Tail-backs must be surer of their kicks and passes than they were Saturday while the entire eleven must click with more precision.

STRIBLING DIES OF INJURIES

End Comes Peacefully In Macon Hospital; Strength Gave Him Chance.

MACON, Ga., Oct. 3.—W. L. (Young) Stribling, former contender for the heavyweight championship, died early today from injuries received in a motor accident Sunday.

The end came peacefully after the young fighter staged an amazing and heart-breaking battle against death, with only his superb constitution, according to doctors, giving him a chance in the one-sided battle.

His parents, summoned to the sick-room early this morning when doctors indicated he could not live much longer, came out about ten minutes to six.

"It's all over," said "Pa" Stribling, "he's gone."

At six a. m. (EST) Dr. A. P. Kemp emerged from his room. He shook his head.

"Dead," he said.

VEECK IS ILL

CHICAGO, Oct. 3.—William L. Veck, president of the Chicago Cubs, was critically ill today from an ailment diagnosed as leukemia, a disease of the blood.

Veck's illness came close on the heels of an attack of influenza. He was ordered to St. Luke's hospital last Friday when his condition suddenly turned worse.

"Veck is a very sick man," said Dr. Leo C. Clowes. The physician declined to discuss further details of his illness.

Indian Population
It is a much mooted question as to how many Indians there were in the area of the present United States at the discovery of America. Estimates or rather guesses, vary from $46,000 to 1,115,000. The population dwindled rapidly, at any rate, and after the Civil war it was counted as 291,000. There has been a slight increase in the last decades, enough to show that the race has not vanished.

WHAT the STARSSAY

BY R. FREDERIC KANE

Monday will be a good day for all business affairs.

Tuesday should be a good day for those born in the sign Capricorn and also a good day to visit with the old folks. Don't have any arguments with those who hold positions of authority.

Wednesday—Sign no important papers on this day if you can avoid it and be cautious about what you write in letters. This applies especially to those born in the signs Virgo and Gemini.

Thursday—Have no arguments with the older folks on this day. Otherwise there are no important planetary aspects in force.

Friday—Nothing of importance on this day.

Saturday—Another adverse day for those born September 4th. See that you are not led into any schemes that will mean the loss of money or lead you into some scandal. Hold your temper on this day.

All week the planet Saturn will transit over the Sun, position of those born January 29, and in opposition the Sun position of those born August 2. If this affects you, do not exaggerate your troubles. If you feel rather badly remember that next week things will be better.

Some real good opportunities should come to those born September 27 or 28. If either of those days happen to be your birthday, do not overlook any opportunities which come your way. Anything which you start this week will turn out the way you want it to.

Yet your opinion would be like the other fellow's if you had made it out of the same limited material.

Cuban Shadow Watched As F. D. R. Hurries East

ABOARD PRESIDENTIAL SPECIAL ENROUTE TO NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—President Roosevelt came back into the East today fresh from a triumphal speech in Chicago before the American Legion, but with the ominous shadow of trouble in Cuba hanging in the skies of international relations.

The executive will make another speech on Wednesday night in New York, this one before the National Catholic charities. He has already started work on the address, but was many times interrupted by telephonic communications from the state department in Washington.

Thus far, newest developments in the island republic have brought no thought of a change in this country's policy towards Cuba, but nevertheless, Mr. Roosevelt kept the closest watch on the island through state department and press dispatches. It was conceded among the President's closest associates that he regards the situation as grave, but as yet he believes the present policy of awaiting further developments the wisest.

WATCHES SITUATION

There were no conferences scheduled for today in New York. Mr. Roosevelt felt that he would have plenty to do in working on his speech and watching the Cuban situation.

It was quite possible the President would attend the opening of the World Series in New York, but in view of the Cuban situation this was far from a certainty.

The New York address was expected to deal largely with finance. Mr. Roosevelt inaugurated the greatest financial program ever attempted before he left Washington a week ago today, and tomorrow he may explain it in some measure to his New York audience.

The Chicago address, which was greeted with thunderous applause by thirty odd thousand veterans, embraced the declaration that while the government is ready and willing to do everything possible for the man injured in the war, there is no obligation on the part of the federal government to pension the man disabled from causes not connected with his service.

SPEECH CHEERED

The President received a tumultuous welcome in Chicago despite the fact that, under White House orders, there was little publicity attending his visit there. Mr. Roosevelt arrived at 11 a. m., and an hour later was facing the men who fought the war and who, under the administration's economy program, were drastically cut in their compensation. Yet these men cheered the executive when he told them special benefits were the enemy of national unity and that the veteran fulfilled no more than an obligation of citizenship when he went to fight for his country.

One of the sincerely touching aspects of the Chicago visit was when Mr. Roosevelt and Mrs. Roosevelt laid a floral wreath on the grave of Anton Cermak, late mayor of Chicago. Cermak, in the vernacular of the gangster, stopped a bullet meant for the President, and died.

The President's special train was to pull into New York about noon today. The executive was to go directly to his Sixty-fifth-st home. Tomorrow he will rest, speak at night, and then leave for Washington.

Only one stop was made in the President's trip east from Chicago. When his train reached Elkhart, Ind., about 7 p. m., a crowd at the depot was so vociferous that the executive came out on the back platform.

Miss Ruffner told the class about Indian music and Indian dances. The class wrote what they had learned for the English class. The following is an example of the work, by Thelma Dumm:

THE INDIAN DANCE

There used to be many more Indian tribes than there are now. Different tribes have different ways of dancing.

Some dancers wear costumes and masks, and then some wear feathers in a head dress. Every Indian dance has a meaning. Sometimes it means war, or after war when they have beaten their enemies.

Sometimes in acting out the Indian myth, every movement of the body is in strict time with the song that accompanies this dance.

These dancers are sometimes part of religious ceremonies.

These songs and dances have been handed down for many, many years.

When an Indian dances, he dances with freedom. His whole body becomes expressive. Sometimes he imitates eagles flying, sometimes wild animals, and sometimes a warrior in battle.

Work done by the members of last year's seventh grade will be on display at the Pumpkin Show. This display will include: Product maps of U. S., maps of Ohio, maps of Pickaway-co., maps of South America and some specimens of handwriting.

The present class will also display handwriting and a map of North America.

Why
Liquid Laxatives
are Back in Favor

The public is fast returning to the use of liquid laxatives. People have learned that the properly prepared liquid laxative will bring a perfect movement without any discomfort at the time, or after.

The dose of a liquid laxative can be varied to suit the needs of the individual. The action can thus be regulated. A child is easily given the right dose. And mild liquid laxatives do not irritate the kidneys.

Doctors are generally agreed that senna is the best laxative for everybody. Senna is a natural laxative. It does not drain the system like the cathartics that leave you so thirsty. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a liquid laxative which relies on senna for its laxative action. It has the average person's bowels as regular as clockwork in a few weeks' time.

You can always get Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at any drugstore, ready for use. Member N. R. A.

about Cigarettes

Of all the ways in which tobacco is used the cigarette is the mildest form

YOU know, ever since the Indians found out the pleasure of smoking tobacco, there have been many ways of enjoying it.

But of all the ways in which tobacco is used, the cigarette is the mildest form.

Another thing—cigarettes are about the most convenient smoke. All you have to do is strike a match.

Everything that money can buy and everything that science knows about is used to make Chesterfields.

The right home-grown tobaccos—seasoned with just enough aromatic Turkish—are blended and cross-blended the Chesterfield way.

Then the cigarettes are made right—firm, well-filled. Chesterfield uses the right kind of pure cigarette paper.

There are other good cigarettes, of course, but Chesterfield is the cigarette that's milder, the cigarette that tastes better.

Chesterfields satisfy—
we ask you to try them.

Environment and Cupid

IN times of old when knights and maids were not so bold the romantic notion prevailed that in all the world there is only one girl for each eligible bachelor, and that he must find, woo and win her, and will pine away if he does not; and conversely, that if the lady discovers her soul-mate and is prevented from halting and alighting him she will either go swiftly to the grave or else endure a long life of spinsterhood.

That was a romantic idea, indeed, but it doesn't hold water today. Believe it or not in the theory of environment, particularly the theory that it has anything to do with love and marriage, but the fact is that environment, not romantic vision, determines one's partner through life or part of it.

The residence record of 5,000 marriages in Philadelphia tells the prosaic story. In 12.64 per cent of the cases the principals lived at the same address; in 4.54 per cent, in the same block; in 6.08 per cent, one or two blocks apart; and in the majority of cases or nearly 52 per cent, they lived within 20 blocks of each other.

That leaves about 25 per cent for the Leathes and Sir Launces, who, failing to find the one and only at home, set forth to spy and win her wherever she may be in this broad world. How many of that number go in search of fortune and come back hymenized one can only conjecture, but many will ruefully confess that a new environment did it.

There is a lot of silly, impossible stuff on the screen but that overworked plot about two persons of opposite sex cast upon a desert island discovering that they are soul-mates isn't as unreal as it seems. Love is like that.

But never yet has a Moses saved a people that sat with folded hands and waited to be saved.

Matrimony Serious Business

HOW serious is matrimony? All around are evidences that the vast majority of men and women regard it with traditional gravity. Whatever disappointments have come to one or the other party to the connubial partnership, they usually are concealed and so far as surface indications go all is serene in the average home.

An overruling sense of duty it may be that prevents the dislocation of many matrimonial bonds, causing wife or husband to endure the almost unbearable. Other less respectable reason may impel one to tolerate a galling condition. But the common impression given it that matrimony is regarded seriously.

It is well so, as may be concluded after reflection upon some of the conspicuous failures brought forth in the news. Yet we wonder when the seriousness of matrimony takes hold of a lot of people. Obviously in all too many instances it is not within the period of courtship when there is still time to avoid error.

If only after the wedding wife or husband begins to learn about the other that which should have been ascertained before a matrimonial shipwreck is almost certain to ensue. How very serious matrimony is appears from whatever angle the subject is examined. No special warning should be needed to impress this truth on any.

The best way to keep your faith in love is never to get into a helpless state where you must yell for succor.

CHAPTER XLVIII

"I thought you and Joan were sweethearts," Ruth said slyly. Bill didn't raise his eyes from his plate, but the knuckles of his hand stood out whitely. "Where did you get that idea?"

"Joan."

"I suppose one might call it that," he said after a pause, "I thought an awful lot of her anyway, when I was a kid."

Her brown eyes were soft with sympathy. "These kid affairs," she sighed. "Gosh, the times my young heart was broke!" She laughed again.

"I hope she will be very happy," he said finally. "She's a fine girl. You know the man, don't you? He has a mighty fine reputation—"

"Yes, I know him," she said. Her thoughts were darting back and forth, scheming, planning, quickly—quickly. "He is really an awful nice sort, and they're frightfully in love—it embarrasses me to look at 'em!"

She saw him wince, but he spoke heartily enough. "Well, that's the way it ought to be. Can't imagine anyone getting married if they're not in love. When is your wedding coming off, Ruth?"

"Mine! Listen to him—say, a fat chance I have of getting married with the old ogre of a father of Rollo's sitting on his money bags, growling like a bulldog with a sore tooth—"

"Oh, come off that, Ruth. Old Man Keyes is a wonder—"

"Wonder! Wonder of a tightwad—selfish old pig—"

"Best friend I ever had, Ruth," she looked at him sharply. "Because he gave you a job, and made you work like a dog, and—"

"Oh no—that isn't so. He—well—he's been everything to me. I'd be riding a brak-beam this minute I guess if it hadn't been for him. He—"

"Say, he didn't settle something on you, did he?" Her shrewd eyes searched him again. Bill had always looked prosperous, but there was a different air about him this trip. An air of assurance. He wasn't a boy with a good job any longer, he was a man with an assured future—she knew—she'd seen enough to know—

He grinned, boyishly now. "Better than that. Want to hear about it?"

"Of course, I do, Willum—"

She reached over and squeezed his hand, his nice strong hand, with the slender brown fingers—

"We're partners!" he laughed, and thumped his chest.

"Not—in partnership with Emmet Keyes—"

"Oh, just on one deal—don't get excited! Still it sounds good, doesn't it? You see it was this way. I—well—I kind of blew up after I went back. Rollo and I were hitting it up pretty high. Rollo trying to drown his sorrow, and I helping him—and well—the old man called me down."

"He was all in the right. Wanted me to go back to the oil fields and go to work—got on the train all right, but I didn't get off at Bakerville. I guess I had the itching foot. I wanted to hobo it. It—didn't seem worth while working, at the time—"

"Boys will be boys," Ruth murmured. "As if I don't know Joan's engagement. I know—"

"But it didn't work out. I got sick of it. I begged a few meals—that woke me up, so I went to work. Got a job around the oil fields for a while. There was some talk about something doing out in Texas—that gave me an excuse to go on. To cut it short it wasn't all talk, it looked like a big thing to me, and I thought it might be my way of making up to the old man for the raw deal I'd handed him, walking out without any reason, so I beat it back and—"

"William Martin, do you mean to say you struck some rich oil proposition, and you're in on it with Old Man Keyes—"

"Well—it may not amount to so much," he said with a little deprecating grin. "Still, it's a big thing for me, getting in with Keyes like that—he's a prince, Ruthie. When you know him better—"

"I'm never going to know him any better—not if I see him first!"

"Oh, come, come—don't you see that all this will put Rollo on his feet too? You didn't think I'd forget a pal, did you? Why Ruth, it won't be any time before you and Rollo—"

She leaned over and took his hand again. "Willum—don't. Don't say any more until I tell you—"

"Why Ruth—you aren't crying! Well, for—"

She nodded, her big brown eyes brimming. "You're darn right I am. Willum—I didn't want to tell you—but darn it—I've got to—"

Bill had forgotten how pretty she was, with her lovely pink skin, and her round brown eyes, soft and appealing now, brimming with tears.

"Well, most men get that way once in a while—"

"Yes, but Curtis isn't most men! You know it sort of strikes me funny in a way. I'm almost glad he does get cross—shows he's got his failings like me. It almost scares me sometimes—he's so good. And the things his mother tells about him! He's certainly been a wonderful son to her—"

"Why don't you go to bed if you're sleepy?" Maisie asked sensibly. "The one night you could get a little rest, you stand around and talk!"

"But I wanted to tell you about the week-end. Maisie, would you be very lonely if I went up to the cabin with Curtis—"

"If you want?"

"Oh, Maisie—you do look so funny!" Joan dropped into the rocker, and shook with laughter. "Oh, dear—I'm so tired I'm foolish! The cabin in the Santa Cruz mountains where we were at Thanksgiving. Mrs. Barstow and Mrs. Cunningham. I think—some friend of hers anyway—and another couple, the Laids, I believe. Won't it be great? A whole week-end, and not a formal dinner!" She laughed again, and yawned. "I hope we have lots of picnics—you won't be lonely, Maisie!"

Maisie beamed. "Well—if that don't work out just fine. Here I had a letter from Gerald, that's my oldest boy in Stockton, asking me for their wedding anniversary on Saturday. They're going to have quite a time. I was thinkin' I might go. I've never even seen little Geraldine—"

"Imagine me a grandmother!—an old thing like that!—"

"I suppose I can put up with Alice—that's Gerald's wife, for a couple of days, though what he ever said in that girl, piano legs, an' a voice like a foghorn—"

"Packing. The small flat was in an upper. Packages. Expressmen. Delivery boys. Maisie was equipped for six months at the North Pole, instead of three days at Stockton. Gifts for baby Geraldine. Gifts for Gerald. Gifts for the despised Alice. She'd never make the train—"

"never—"

"But all of a sudden she was there! What a fuss! With just a little piece of kimono sticking out, and she was ready, all her packages and bags around her, and the taxi man waiting at the door."

"Goodbye, dearie... have a good time yourself... you won't be lonely if you get home before I do. You better call up Miss Harvey, an' have her come stay with you, well, it's all right if you don't want her... goodbye... goodbye!"

Maisie was on her way!

Joan threw open all the windows, letting the morning air in with a rush. "What a fuss!"

She finished her own packing luxuriously, enjoying the beautiful solitude, the leisurely ticking of the clock, the feel of the fuzzy white sweater she was folding into her bag, the look of the sturdy flat-soled shoes that would be just the thing for hikes with Curtis while the bridge fiends played.

Curtis... her mouth twitched. She sank, in an ungraceful little heap on the floor beside the open suitcase, looking at it with unseeing eyes.

"Oh Curtis... dear... if I can only make up to you for everything—and forget... forget everything else..."

Brrr... Brrr... Brrr... The telephone, gurgling, insistent. (To Be Continued Tomorrow)

MOVIES

AT THE CLIFTONA
Thrills run rampant and romance progresses at a mile-a-minute pace in "Headline Shooter," RKO-Radio Pictures' realistic melodrama of a daring newsreel cameraman, which opened Sunday at the Cliftona Theatre with William Gargan and Frances Dee heading a commendable cast.

AT THE GRAND
Hog-judging scenes in which the 900-pound Blue Boy competes with other giant porkers under the anxious eyes of Will Rodgers provide some of the big laughs in Fox Film's all-star production, "State Fair," currently at the Grand Theatre. Janet Gaynor, Will Rogers, Lew Ayres, Sally Eilers, Norman Foster, Louise Dresser, Frank Craven and Victor Jory constitute the all-star cast.

It's easy to pick out the most backward state. You just notice which one has the greatest appetite for oratorical taffy.

The taxi chugged away, her bright face at the window blurred and was gone.

Slowly he walked to the hotel, buying all the evening papers on the way. One of them might have a picture of Joan.

The Farley's dinner was over early, thank goodness. Joan came in yawning, although it was just half past ten. "Oh, I'm sleepy. They're the dullest people I ever met in my life. But old friends of the Barstows, so we had to go. I'm tired for sleep. So's Curtis. He's so tired he's cross—Curtis—"

She laughed unsteadily. "Can you imagine Curtis being cross, Maisie?"

"Well, most men get that way once in a while—"

"Yes, but Curtis isn't most men! You know it sort of strikes me funny in a way. I'm almost glad he does get cross—shows he's got his failings like me. It almost scares me sometimes—he's so good. And the things his mother tells about him! He's certainly been a wonderful son to her—"

PLAN TO LIFT FARM PRICES TO MEET INDUSTRIAL GAINS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—Extension of the Administration's cotton loan plan to apply to other agricultural commodities is being pushed rapidly. Continuous conferences are being held with the purpose of making the plan operative as to all possible crops prior to December 1. As in the case of the cotton loan plan, it will be definitely linked with the acreage reduction program to guard the Government against monetary losses, as well as to render more certain advanced prices for all crops to be affected.

The primary purpose is materially to increase farm prices during the period when the largest proportion of crops will be marketed and to bring farm prices at once to a level commensurate with increases in the prices of industrial products. The substantial credits to be extended to farmers will reflect the Administration's own confidence in its drive for recovery and remove its efforts from the realm of price fixing or stabilization.

The cotton loan plan is designed to put a "bottom" under cotton prices by offering loans to cotton growers up to 10 cents a pound on all cotton held by them, provided they agree to join the Government in production-control plans for next year. Through this plan farm officials hope to reflect once gains in the prices they expect to come later from the reduction of acreage. Rising of prices is regarded as essential. Farmers are in many cases without resources to delay selling for any extended period beyond harvest time, or even to incur the expense of harvesting.

The next farm commodities to be included in the extension of the cotton loan plan are hogs and corn. This plan will be ready within a week. It will supplement the emergency pig and sow purchasing program, which expired September 29. That had been characterized as purely an emergency measure to help out farmers with shortages of feed as result of drought.

Agricultural Administrator Peck said that the extent of which the new plan will be applied to wheat depends upon what representatives of wheat producers purpose. The wheat-production control campaign was completed September 26. Benefit payments of $90,000,000 are to be distributed to growers who pledged acreage reduction.

What a world! Without people it would be too lonely; yet all of its woe is caused by people.

Neglect of Common Cold Leads to Complications

Now Is the Time of Year When This Affliction Is Prevalent; Negligence Dangerous

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.
United States senator from New York
Former Commissioner of Health,
New York City

THIS is the time of year when the "common cold" is a daily affliction in every family. It is most prevalent during the fall and winter months but may occur at any time when the weather is changeable and persons are careless about their health habits. It is indeed an uncomfortable ailment and often leads to serious and prolonged illness.

It is probable that few diseases have received as much attention and been subjected to as much research work as the common cold. In spite of all this investigation, the exact cause of the common cold has not been discovered. Some authorities believe it is due to a germ. But the exact germ has never been isolated. Then again, some believe it may result from the attack of one of several kinds of germs. Still others are confident that the weakened resistance of the body and susceptibility to cold infection can be attributed to a lack of certain vitamins in the diet.

Though we do not know the exact cause of this troublesome disorder, we are familiar with certain factors that increase the susceptibility of an individual to a cold. For example, chilling of the body and lack of sufficient sleep lead to danger of contracting a cold. Continued exposure to cold, wet and dampness, hunger and poor health are other factors that must not be overlooked.

A cold is an infectious disease. It spreads quickly from one individual to another. This is especially true in crowds and in poorly ventilated rooms.

Never delay calling your doctor if you have a cough and, despite rest in bed, you do not show improvement. It is best to receive the necessary medicine and advice that will insure a rapid and safe recovery. Always remember that a prolonged cold is a serious menace to health and should receive the same attention that other infections require.

Answers to Health Queries

Miss B. H. Q.—I am only twenty-two years of age and wish to do something about my hair. It is turning gray very fast. What would you advise?

A.—Nothing can be done to restore the color to the hair once it has started to turn gray. However, you might try improving your general health by eating of a well balanced diet, etc. The condition of the hair as well as that of the skin depends upon the general health. For further particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Tablets Relieve and Control Periodic Pains

Now! A Quicker Way to Ease Pain

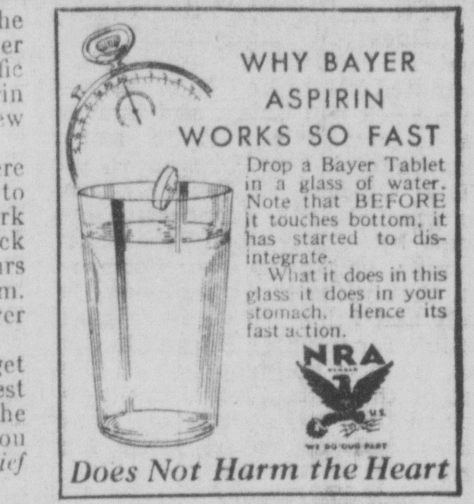

Don't Forget Real BAYER Aspirin Starts "Taking Hold" in Few Minutes

Here is quicker relief from pain—the fastest safe relief, it is said, ever known. This is due to a scientific discovery by which BAYER Aspirin starts "taking hold" of pain a few minutes after taking.

The illustration of the glass here tells the story. A Bayer tablet starts to disintegrate or dissolve—go to work—almost instantly. This means quick relief from pain—fewer lost hours from headache, neuritis, rheumatism. And safe relief. For genuine Bayer Aspirin does not harm the heart.

When you buy, see that you get the genuine Bayer Aspirin. The best way is never to ask for aspirin by the name "aspirin" alone. But if you want Bayer Aspirin's quick relief always to say "BAYER Aspirin."

NEWS OF HOMES AND HOME FOLKS

VOL. 4. NO. 40

Published by STEVENSON'S

Tuesday, October 3, 1933

There's no two ways about it, when you buy an Estate Heatrola you've made an investment. For instance, away back when they were new on the market, we installed one for a chap south of Roundtown. He has used it all of these years and sold it, just a few days ago, for a little more than one-third of the present price of the new ones. As the boys say, "Wasn't that sumpin'?" A little classified ad. was run in the local paper that our customer had an Estate Heatrola for sale. FIVE PROSPECTS answered that little ad. Folks know that when it's an Estate it's a GENUINE HEATROLA.

Speaking of Heatrolas, another chap married a girl that has had an Estate in her home. The young folks are moving into their own home in another city, but they are taking a new Heatrola with them. Pretty good evidence, isn't it, that the young lady was perfectly satisfied with results obtained from the Heatrola in her old home?

And still speaking of Heatrolas, it was a pleasure for us to take an old Estate Hot-Storm heater out of a home near New Holland last week and replace it with the latest model of the Estate Heatrola. The man-of-the-house felt that he was not taking any chances in buying another Estate for the old one—which was the "daddy" of the Heatrola—for he knew what a fine thing the INTENSIFIRE AIR-DUCT is and it can be found only on the genuine Heatrola. We'll make things HOT for this family this winter!

One of the "lightest" shipments that has ever arrived at our store came in last week. It was a large shipment of floor and table lamps (lights), all mediums priced and of beautiful designs. Now that we're all hunting the indoors for the winter, why not provide your home with some new lamps? And it wouldn't be a bad idea to consider some Christmas presents from our stock, either.

While you are "doing" the Pumpkin Show, you are invited to call at our store and see what the "Missus" has in store for you. See the "parlor" of grandma's time; the "sitting" room of mother's day, and the present day living room. The Boss (?) has gone to a lot of trouble in preparing and gathering the materials, so we hope you'll come around and enjoy it.

We just can't resist talking of Estate products, so we just want to ask our country friends to see this make of coal range—the Heatrola Range. We believe that you will agree that it is a remarkable "buy" for $89.50. City folks, and country folks desiring gas—Pyrofax—are invited to look at our gas ranges in the Estate line.

So long; we'll be seeing you at the Pumpkin Show?

Conference to Decide Whether Johnson Quits

WASHINGTON — General Hugh S. Johnson, NRA chief and one of the most dynamic characters ever to appear on the Washington horizon, is on the verge of letting the Blue Eagle fly its way alone.

General Johnson has made no definite decision on this, but it is not unlikely that within the near future he will step out of the Roosevelt Administration. He expects to have a friendly but straight-from-the-shoulder conference with his Chief at Hyde Park as soon as he gets out of the hospital. Upon this will hinge his decision. The chances are strong that he will step out.

There are four factors behind the uncertainty of Johnson's future. The first three of these deal with the present economic situation which has every Administration leader with half an eye, badly worried. The pick-up of the early summer months is not continuing. The Stock Market gambled on quicker recovery, discounted inflation. Things have failed to come along as fast as everyone had expected. Specifically Johnson's friends say three things are wrong:

1. Banks have not been opened. Money has been tied up where people could not spend it. Sound banks have insisted on a high degree of liquidity. Money has been tight and there has been no appreciable stimulation of consumer buying power.

2. Agricultural commodity prices have failed to keep pace with the industrial price advance spurred on by the NRA. Professor Tugwell, just back from the midwest, has made a private report to Secretary Wallace that the farm belt is angry, rebellious.

3. Public Works, considered necessary to prime the pump of industry, have lagged. Finally friends of both Johnson and Roosevelt say a wedge seems to have been driven in between them. Much of their old cordiality has evaporated. The President has been inclined to think that Johnson overdid the ballgame stuff, should have spent his time pushing adoption of codes. Coding of industry he considers to be the most important part of the Recovery Program.

As in any misunderstanding, there is a lot to be said on both sides.

Tragedy

Harry L. Hopkins, Unemployment Relief Administrator, uses an Army airplane to get to numerous out-of-town conferences he has to attend. The other day his ship encountered a terrific storm, was severely jostled, narrowly escaped crashing.

When he returned to his office his alarmed assistants congratulated him on his good fortune. "Were you scared?" he was asked. "Well, some, of course," Hopkins answered. "But what really did break my heart was the smashing of six avocado pears I was bringing home to Mrs. Hopkins, and also something else I was bringing home for myself."

Secret Commitment

There are several reasons for putting War Debt negotiations in the hands of the Treasury rather than the State Department. But perhaps the most important reason is not being mentioned above a whisper.

That reason is the fact that during the Hoover Administration the United States was not represented. Actually Allan Dulles, one-time

VIRGINIA VOTES
RICHMOND, Va., Oct. 3.—The Old Dominion, once the stronghold of Bishop Cannon, Jr., and other arid apostles, went to the polls today with wet leaders predicting it would become the 32nd state to ratify the repeal of the 18th amendment. Wets were greatly encouraged by a statement from Gov. John G. Pollard, long a dry stalwart in which he announced he would vote for ratification of the repeal amendment to the constitution. Though the dries waged a bitter campaign wets claim they will have a majority ranging from 30,000 to 50,000.

Pollard urged the state to join the solid repeal wall the people have made about the 18th amendment.

NEW DISORDER SEEN IN CUBA

Welles Seeks To Protect American Lives; Executions Denied.

HAVANA, Oct. 3.—Additional measures to protect American residents of Havana were drafted by United States Ambassador Sumner Welles today owing to fears of new disorders following the National battle which claimed 100 lives. Details of the plans were not revealed, but Ambassador Welles was known to be in close contact with Washington, where a battalion of marines originally destined for Guantanamo, Cuba, was diverted to Dry Tortugas, Florida, only four hours' sailing distance from Havana.

Meanwhile, Captain Julio Velasco, chief of the La Fuerza fortress, denied reports a number of army officers who surrendered following yesterday's battle had been summarily executed.

All are being held, he said, for prosecution in the civil courts. Announcement that no executions had taken place was made as the wives of many officers besieged local newspaper offices with tearful pleas for information regarding their husbands.

The captured officers, Captain Velasco said, are not recognized as military men owing to their refusal to obey orders and return to duty following the disposal of former Provisional President Carlos Manuel De Cespedes, whom they supported.

Consequently, instead of being court-martialed, they will be tried in civilian courts.

"All officers who were killed died in action," the captain said. "None was shot as a traitor. They are being held prisoners pending trial."

SHERIFF HEADS KIWANIS CLUB

Radcliff Elected Monday Evening; John Dunlap, Jr., To Be Vice President.

Sheriff Charles H. Radcliff was elected president of the Kiwanis club, Monday evening, to succeed Sterling M. Lamb. John H. Dunlap, Jr., of Williamsport, was chosen vice president replacing Clarence Helvering.

Seven directors, including Mayor B. T. Hedges, Clarence Helvering, Harold Bowers, G. P. Hunsicker, E. I. Gephart, C. E. Hill and Russell Imbler, were named.

The officers will choose a secretary in which capacity Tom A. Renick is now serving.

The club voted to support an effort to have U. S. route 22 between the Scioto river bridge and State Route 56 improved after a communication was read from Fred C. Clark. Mr. Renick, who acted as president because of the illness of Mr. Lamb, appointed John Dunlap, Sr., G. P. Hunsicker and Clarence Helvering on a committee to further the effort.

ADKINS TO PASS UPON NILES' ACTION AT HEARING'S CLOSE

Injunction Proceeding in Municipal Vote is Thursday Morning

TO START AT 9:30

Board of Elections is Defendant in Suit

Judge J. W. Adkins indicated Tuesday that he will decide the permanent injunction proceedings of Charles Niles, S. Washington-st., against the Board of Elections from the bench immediately after the hearing is concluded Thursday. The hearing is expected to start between 9:30 and 10 a. m. with Weldon and Weldon and

2 CITIES TO VOTE

Voters of Cincinnati and East Liverpool will decide municipal ownership issues at the November 7 election. The former will decide whether the city shall own and operate gas and electric plants. After a five year rate fight the referendum was assured when the Board of Elections approved a petition. The plan is to buy the properties of the utility concern. More than 1,300 persons signed a petition for a vote on construction of a municipal electric system in East Liverpool.

Charles Gerhardt representing Niles and Ray W. Davis, prosecuting attorney, acting as counsel for the Board of Elections.

A temporary restraining order preventing the board of elections from placing the issue on the ballot has been granted by the court pending final disposition of the case.

Mr. Niles filed the injunction proceedings after the petition prepared by L. C. Hammel, Noah G. Spangler and Ward W. Robinson had been certified by Miss Lillian Young, city auditor, to the Board of Elections. Several petitions which bore a number of names of persons asking that their signatures be stricken from the initiative petition were presented to the auditor after the petition had been sent to the election board and naturally they were ignored. Mr. Niles' action claims the petition was certified one day too early to the board of elections.

BANK PRESIDENT'S ACTION IS SURPRISE

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 3.—A steady eye and a little "white lie" today had foiled the attempt of two would-be desperadoes to rob the Farmers Bank at Tiro, 14 miles northwest of here.

Flourishing revolvers, two bandits entered the bank yesterday and confronted Dr. W. H. Guiss, the bank president, with demands to "hand over the cash."

Coolly and calmly Dr. Guiss eyed the bandits steadily and replied that he already had turned in the burglar alarm and that he was expecting the police at the bank "at any minute."

The bandits became frightened and fled, forgetting their intentions to stage a robbery.

Burl Hill Sent To Ohio Prison

Burl Hill, 33, colored of Maplewood-ave, pleaded guilty to a statutory charge Monday afternoon in common pleas court and was sentenced to a one to two year term in the Ohio penitentiary. Judge J. W. Adkins, who passed sentence, ordered the sentence be served at hard labor.

Hill was indicted by a special grand jury after charges that he had been intimate with a 14-year-old white girl were filed. He denied the indictment and was held in jail under $2,000 bond. Planning to stand trial, Hill, an indigent prisoner, asked for an attorney and William Radcliff, Williamsport, was appointed. Monday noon he informed the court Hill was ready to change his plea.

Since the man is a World War veteran and partially disabled after being gassed an effort is to be made to have him transferred to the prison farm at London.

The hard labor clause of the sentence will be up to prison officials, Judge Adkins said, who are expected to work him as much as he is able.

Trial of John Francis, charged with stealing wheat from Jesse Thompson, Jackson-twp, is scheduled for next Monday before Judge Adkins. An attorney will probably be appointed for the man who was indicted by a recent grand jury.

Owens Replaces Jimmy Creedon

Transfer To Special Homicide Detail Prevents Creedon Coming Here.

After serving Circleville's Pumpkin Show as a special detective for 14 consecutive years, James Creedon, popular Columbus detective, will not be in the harness for the big event this year.

Safety Director J. Wallace Crist informed Pumpkin Show directors Monday evening that Safety Director C. C. Williams, of Columbus, had informed him Creedon would not be available. Clem Owens, another crack Columbus detective, has been loaned to the city for the Pumpkin Show, however, Owens is also reported to be an excellent detective.

Creedon and Harry Carson have been placed on a new homicide squad, effective last Sunday, and all their efforts and time will be devoted to this work.

LEGION LAUDS F. D. R.'S TALK

Four-point Program Continued, However, As Convention Progresses.

CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 3.—President Roosevelt will suffer no embarrassment from the fifteenth annual national convention of the American Legion.

That fact was apparent here today as legionnaires milled over the daring speech of the chief executive before the Legion gathering yesterday.

Curiously, few members of the veterans' organization agreed totally with the policies affecting ex-service men were enunciated by the chief executive.

Yet, among the leaders as well as the rank and file, the president undoubtedly had lost little strength.

As the veterans today went into formation for the annual convention parade they viewed the president, who donned a Legion convention cap yesterday, as "buddy" who spoke up in post meeting but who may be voted down not from prejudice but because of an honest difference of opinion.

The legionnaires prepared to further their four-point program, regardless of the president's views. Only a few hours after the president spoke the national rehabilitation committee had voted to continue that policy and the 125,000 men who paraded through the loop today were expected to back the committee to the limit.

DOLLFUSS HURT

DOLLFUSS HIT BY ASSASSIN

Chancellor of Austria Slightly Wounded; Ex-Soldier Held For Attack.

VIENNA, Oct. 3.—A 22-year-old ex-soldier, incensed over his dismissal from the army for Nazi activities, shot and wounded Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss in an assassination attempt today.

The assailant was identified by police as Rudolf Dertl. He stepped up to Dollfuss as the chancellor was leaving his car in front of the parliament building, pretended to hand him a petition and then opened fire. Dollfuss was wounded in the chest and arm but was able to go home swathed in bandages after emergency treatment.

After receiving congratulations from government colleagues on his lucky escape from death, Chancellor Dollfuss called a special session of his cabinet.

He was reported planning to propose drastic new measures to quell the rise of the Nazi movement in Austria—an ambition that already has won him countless enemies here and in Germany.

Among the first to congratulate Dollfuss was Vice-Chancellor Major Emil Fey, who with the chancellor has been most active in suppressing Nazi agitation in this country.

Chancellor Dollfuss, for many years prominent in Austrian politics, was chosen head of a coalition cabinet on May 20, 1932, and remained as premier when the government was reorganized and reconstituted in May of this year.

Court News

Testimony was started Tuesday morning before Judge J. W. Adkins in the bastardy case of Jesse Tatman against Richard Preest.

Bear Kills Boy

Grief-stricken, Owner of Animal, Surrenders to Police on Manslaughter Charge.

BROOKHAVEN, N. Y., Oct. 3.—Grief-stricken, Gardiner Murdock, owner of a supposedly tame black bear which mauled and crushed 11-year-old Grant Taylor to death when the boy attempted to feed it an apple, today awaited possible grand jury action in connection with the boy's death.

Murdock, returning to his inn here after the tragedy, surrendered to authorities and was held in $1,500 bail on a charge of second degree manslaughter.

Young Taylor was killed when the bear snapped a chain by which it was tethered in the yard of Murdock's inn, chased him behind a tree, cornered him and crushed him.

Several motorists who heard the boy's screams were afraid to interfere.

Lancaster Tries to Rectify Move of Hoodlum Mob

Ignited by the state of affairs developed after the football game at Lancaster two weeks ago, Circleville automobiles were victims of a barrage of overripe and taken steps to rectify the situation.

The following letters sent to Supt. J. Daley and Prin. E. I. Gephart show what action the Lancaster school men and officials are taking.

Following is the copy sent to Mr. Daley:

I want you to know how much we are humiliated at the treatment given your pupils and their friends following the football game last Friday, and how much we regret this discourtesy. We want you to know that such "hoodlum" tactics have no sanction here, either among the pupils and teachers of our school, or among the city officials.

At my request, after a telephone conversation Friday afternoon with your band leader, the Chief of Police put his entire force to guard against such an occurrence. He is now making a careful investigation and will deal with the "hoodlums" if they can be apprehended.

There is only the best spirit and finest feeling here for Circleville and the splendid folks who follow your team so loyally. It will be a deep regret to us, if such stupid conduct on the part of a few should mar our agreeable and enjoyable relationship.

Permit me to commend your high school and team for the high quality of true sportsmanship shown in the game which they played so well and in such a clean manner. Who wins, is insignificant in comparison to these high attributes of genuine sportsmanship.

Very sincerely yours,
C. H. Griffey,
Superintendent.

Following is a copy of the resolution received by Mr. Gephart from Dean M. Hickson, Principal of Lancaster high school. This resolution was unanimously adopted by the student body of Lancaster high school in an assembly on Friday, September 29.

Be it resolved by Lancaster high school that the pupils do deeply regret the discourtesies shown the pupils and friends of Circleville high school after the football game on the night of September 22nd. That these depredations did not have the approval of the student body and do not reflect the spirit of fellowship and sportsmanship which has been most cordial and wholesome between the two schools.

That our school has always held in highest esteem the pupils and teams of Circleville high school and have looked forward each year to the game between the two schools. The splendid spirit and genial support given by friends of the visiting teams has always been commendable and cordial.

That Lancaster high school would regret to have the very pleasant relations which have existed for so many years disturbed by such treatment.

That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the Principal of Circleville high school.

Dean M. Hickson, Prin.

DEAN GIVES BUT 4 HITS

Fans 11 Buffalo Batters As Birds Go Ahead In Series, 7 To 2.

BUFFALO, Oct. 3.—With the Columbus Red Birds leading 4 to 3, the Buffalo Bisons sought to bring the Little World Series of the minor leagues on even terms again with a do-or-die stand tonight.

Paul Dean, sensational 20-year-old pitching flash of the Red Birds, proved too mystifying for the bewildered Bisons to solve last night as they fell before him 7 to 2.

Dean, brother of the mighty Dizzy Dean of the St. Louis Cards, struck out 11 Bison batters and allowed only three passes to first base. Ragged fielding on the part of Buffalo, including three errors, contributed to the Bisons' downfall.

If the Red Birds win tonight, they will take the Little World Series championship with the best five out of nine games.

MAJORS DRAFT EIGHT PLAYERS

Bucher Lost To Columbus; Holland, Chapman, Morgan To Go Up.

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—Eight major league ball clubs selected 12 players from the minors by draft at the annual major league draft meeting held here last night. Philadelphia and Brooklyn of the National league each took three players.

The New York Giants took Fresno Thompson, Buffalo (International League) second baseman. St. Louis Americans drafted Buck Newsom, pitcher, Los Angeles, who formerly played with Chicago and Brooklyn.

The Cincinnati Reds took Irving Jeffries, formerly of the Chicago Americans, who batted .343 for St. Paul in 1933.

Pitchers Davis and Darrow of San Francisco and Galveston, respectively, and Louis Chiozza, powerful Memphis hitter, went to the Phillies.

James Bucher, second baseman belonging to Columbus but who played with Greensboro this year; Glenn Chapman, Indianapolis outfielder, and Ray Berres, Birmingham catcher, will report to Brooklyn.

Other players drafted were Eddie Morgan, former Cleveland first baseman, recently with New Orleans, going to the Boston Americans; Bob Holland, Minneapolis outfielder, drafted by Cleveland, and Art Veltman, picked by Pittsburgh from Oakland.

Ohio 'Cats Face Mighty Purdue

ATHENS, Oct. 3.—Knowing that the adage of a chain being no stronger than its weakest link is particularly adaptable to the 1933 Bobcat football team, Coach Don Peden started today to iron out rough spots revealed in Ohio's 61-0 defeat of Morris Harvey.

The Bobcat mentor was able to give all but a half dozen of his squad a chance to work under fire in the season opener Saturday. With a majority of sophomores playing during the last three quarters, Peden could see just what is needed in the few heavy workouts remaining before the Purdue Boilermakers are met Saturday.

A large portion of drills this week will be devoted to pass defense as Ohio showed weakness in that department Saturday. Blocking must come in for considerable attention if the Bobcats expect to check the "wonder-backfield" of Purdue. The encounter with Purdue will find Ohio facing the strongest opposition it has ever met on the gridiron.

Ohio's showing against Purdue will depend considerably upon the showing of the sophomore backs. Tail-backs must be surer of their kicks and passes than they were Saturday while the entire eleven must click with more precision.

STRIBLING DIES OF INJURIES

End Comes Peacefully In Macon Hospital; Strength Gave Him Chance.

MACON, Ga., Oct. 3.—W. L. (Young) Stribling, former contender for the heavyweight championship, died early today from injuries received in a motor accident Sunday.

The end came peacefully after the young fighter staged an amazing and heart-breaking battle against death, with only his superb constitution, according to doctors, giving him a chance in the one-sided battle.

His parents, summoned to the sick-room early this morning when doctors indicated he could not live much longer, came out about ten minutes to six.

"It's all over," said "Pa" Stribling, "he's gone."

At six a. m. (EST) Dr. A. P. Kemp emerged from his room. He shook his head.

"Dead," he said.

VEECK IS ILL

CHICAGO, Oct. 3.—William L. Veck, president of the Chicago Cubs, was critically ill today from an ailment diagnosed as leucemia, a disease of the blood.

Veck's illness came close on the heels of an attack of influenza. He was ordered to St. Luke's hospital last Friday when his condition suddenly turned worse.

"Veck is a very sick man," said Dr. Leo C. Clowes. The physician declined to discuss further details of his illness.

Indian Population

It is a much mooted question as to how many Indians there were in the area of the present United States at the discovery of America. Estimates or rather guesses, vary from $46,000 to 1,115,000. The population dwindled rapidly, at any rate, and after the Civil war it was counted as 291,000. There has been a slight increase in the last decades, enough to show that the race has not vanished.

WHAT the STARSSAY

BY R. FREDERIC KANE

Monday will be a good day for all business affairs.

Tuesday should be a good day for those born in the sign Capricorn and also a good day to visit with the old folks. Don't have any arguments with those who hold positions of authority.

Wednesday—Sign no important papers on this day if you can avoid it and be cautious about what you write in letters. This applies especially to those born in the signs Virgo and Gemini.

Thursday—Have no arguments with the older folks on this day. Otherwise there are no important planetary aspects in force.

Friday—Nothing of importance on this day.

Saturday—Another adverse day for those born September 4th. See that you are not led into any schemes that will mean the loss of money or lead you into some scandal. Hold your temper on this day.

All week the planet Saturn will transit over the Sun, position of those born January 29, and in opposition the Sun position of those born August 2. If this affects you, do not exaggerate your troubles. If you feel rather badly remember that next week things will be better.

Some real good opportunities should come to those born September 27 or 29. If either of those days happen to be your birthday, do not overlook any opportunities which come your way. Anything which you start this week will turn out the way you want it to.

Yet your opinion would be like the other fellow's if you had made it out of the same limited material.

Cuban Shadow Watched As F. D. R. Hurries East

ABOARD PRESIDENTIAL SPECIAL ENROUTE TO NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—President Roosevelt came back into the East today fresh from a triumphal speech in Chicago before the American Legion, but with the ominous shadow of trouble in Cuba hanging in the skies of international relations.

The executive will make another speech on Wednesday night in New York, this one before the National Catholic charities. He has already started work on the address, but was many times interrupted by telephonic communications from the state department in Washington.

Thus far, newest developments in the island republic have brought no thought of a change in this country's policy towards Cuba, but nevertheless, Mr. Roosevelt kept the closest watch on the island through state department and press dispatches. It was conceded among the President's closest associates that he regards the situation as grave, but as yet he believes the present policy of awaiting further developments the wisest.

WATCHES SITUATION
There were no conferences scheduled for today in New York. Mr. Roosevelt felt that he would have plenty to do in working on a speech and watching the Cuban situation.

It was quite possible the President would attend the opening of the World Series in New York, but in view of the Cuban situation this was far from a certainty.

The New York address was expected to deal largely with finance. Mr. Roosevelt inaugurated the greatest financial program ever attempted before he left Washington a week ago today, and tomorrow he may explain it in some measure to his New York audience.

The Chicago address, which was greeted with thunderous applause by thirty odd thousand veterans, embraced the declaration that while the government is ready and willing to do everything possible for the man injured in the war, there is no obligation on the part of the federal government to pension the man disabled from causes not connected with his service.

SPEECH CHEERED
The President received a tumultuous welcome in Chicago despite the fact that, under White House orders, there was little publicity attending his visit there. Mr. Roosevelt arrived at 11 a. m., and an hour later was facing the men who fought the war and who, under the administration's economy program, were drastically cut in their compensation. Yet these men cheered the executive when he told them special benefits were the enemy of national unity and that the veteran fulfilled no more than an obligation of citizenship when he went to fight for his country.

One of the sincerely touching aspects of the Chicago visit was when Mr. Roosevelt and Mrs. Roosevelt laid a floral wreath on the grave of Anton Cermak, late mayor of Chicago. Cermak, in the vernacular of the gangster, stopped a bullet meant for the President, and died.

The President's special train was to pull into New York about noon today. The executive was to go directly to his Sixty-fifth-st. home. Tomorrow he will rest, speak at night, and then leave for Washington.

Only one stop was made in the President's trip east from Chicago. When his train reached Elkhart, Ind., about 7 p. m., a crowd at the depot was so vociferous that the executive came out on the back platform.

The first program will be given by "The Willing Workers" Oct. 12, which is known as Columbus Day. "The Novelty Club" will entertain on Halloween.

Miss Ruffner told the class about Indian music and Indian dances. The class wrote what they had learned for the English class. The following is an example of the work, by Thelma Dumm:

THE INDIAN DANCE
There used to be many more Indian tribes than there are now. Different tribes have different ways of dancing.

Some dancers wear costumes and masks, and then some wear feathers in a head dress. Every Indian dance has a meaning. Sometimes it means war, or after war when they have beaten their enemies.

Sometimes in acting out the Indian myth, every movement of the body is in strict time with the song that accompanies this dance.

These dancers are sometimes part of religious ceremonies. These songs and dances have been handed down for many, many years.

When an Indian dances, he dances with freedom. His whole body becomes expressive. Sometimes he imitates eagles flying, sometimes wild animals, and sometimes a warrior in battle.

Work done by the members of last year's seventh grade will be on display at the Pumpkin Show. This display will include: Product maps of U. S., maps of Ohio, maps of Pickaway-co., maps of South America and some specimens of handwriting.

The present class will also display handwriting and a map of North America.

Why Liquid Laxatives are Back in Favor

The public is fast returning to the use of liquid laxatives. People have learned that the properly prepared liquid laxative will bring a perfect movement without any discomfort at the time, or after.

The dose of a liquid laxative can be varied to suit the needs of the individual. The action can thus be regulated. A child is easily given the right dose. And mild liquid laxatives do not irritate the kidneys.

Doctors are generally agreed that senna is the best laxative for everybody. Senna is a natural laxative. It does not drain the system like the cathartics that leave you so thirsty. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a liquid laxative which relies on senna for its laxative action. It has the average person's bowels as regular as clockwork in a few weeks' time.

You can always get Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at any drugstore, ready for use. Member N. R. A.

about Cigarettes

Of all the ways in which tobacco is used the cigarette is the mildest form

YOU know, ever since the Indians found out the pleasure of smoking tobacco, there have been many ways of enjoying it.

But of all the ways in which tobacco is used, the cigarette is the mildest form.

Another thing—cigarettes are about the most convenient smoke. All you have to do is strike a match.

Everything that money can buy and everything that science knows about is used to make Chesterfields.

The right home-grown tobaccos—seasoned with just enough aromatic Turkish—are blended and cross-blended the Chesterfield way.

Then the cigarettes are made right—firm, well-filled. Chesterfield uses the right kind of pure cigarette paper.

There are other good cigarettes, of course, but Chesterfield is the cigarette that's milder, the cigarette that tastes better. Chesterfields satisfy—we ask you to try them.

CHAPTER XLVIII

"I thought you and Joan were sweethearts," Ruth said slyly. "Bill didn't raise his eyes from his plate, but the knuckles of his hand stood out whitely. 'Where did you get that idea?'"

"Joan," he said after a pause, "I thought an awful lot of her anyway, when I was a kid."

Her brown eyes were soft with sympathy. "These kid affairs," she sighed. "Gosh, the times my own heart was broken!" She laughed again.

"I hope she will be very happy," he said finally. "She's a fine girl. You know the man, don't you? He has a mighty fine reputation—"

"Yes, I know him," she said. Her thoughts were darting back and forth, scheming, planning, quickly by nice sort, and they're frightfully in love—it embarrasses me to look at 'em!"

She saw him wince, but he spoke heartily enough. "Well, that's the way it ought to be. Can't imagine anyone getting married if they're not in love. When is your wedding coming off, Ruth?"

"Mine! Listen to him—say, a fat chance I have of getting married with the old ore of a father of Ruth's sitting on his money bags, growling like a bulldog with a sore tooth—"

"Oh, come off that, Ruth. Old Man Keyes is a wonder—"

"Wonder! Wonder of a tightwad—selfish old pig—"

"Best price I ever had, Ruth," she looked at him sharply. "Because he gave you a job, and made you work like a dog—you can't tell me I know. Rollo himself said you loved him—"

"Oh, no—that isn't so. He—well—he's been in Texas for some time. I guess if it hadn't been for him, he—"

"Say, did he settle something on you, did he?" Her shrewd eyes searched him again. Bill had always looked prosperous, but there was a different air about him this trip. An air of assurance. He wasn't a boy with a good job any longer, he was a man with an assured future—she knew—she'd seen enough to know—

He grinned, boyishly now. "Better than that. Want to hear about it?"

"Of course, I do, Willum—"

She reached over and squeezed his hand, his nice strong hand, with the slender brown fingers.

"I've got partners!" he laughed, and thumped his chest.

"No! In partnership with Emmet Keyes—"

"Oh, just on one deal—don't get excited! Still it sounds good, doesn't it? You see it was this way. I—well, I kind of blew it after I went back. Rollo and I were living it up pretty high, Rollo trying to drown his sorrow, and I helping him—and well—the old man called me down—"

"He was all in the right. Wanted me to go back to the oil fields and go to work for one year in Texas. I'd right, but I didn't get off at Bakerville. I guess I had the itching foot. I wanted to hobo it. It—didn't seem worth while working at the time—"

"Boys will be boys," Ruth murmured. "As if I don't know why, Bill Martin, all cut up over Joan's engagement, I know—"

"But it didn't work out. I got sick of it. I begged a few meals—that woke me up, so I went to work. Got a job around the oil fields for a while. There was some talk about something doing out in Texas—that gave me an excuse to go on. To cut it short it wasn't all talk, it looked like a big thing to me, and I thought it might be my way of making up to the old man for the raw deal I'd handed him, walking out without any reason so I beat it back and—"

"William Martin, do you mean to say you struck some rich oil proposition, and you're in on it with Old Man Keyes—"

"Well—it may not amount to so much," he said with a little deprecating grin. "Still, it's a big thing. Obviously in all too many instances it is not within the period of courtship when there is still time to avoid error."

How very serious matrimony is appears from whatever angle the subject is examined. No special warning should be needed to impress this truth on any.

that—he's a prince, Ruthie. When you know him better—"

"I'm never going to know him any better—not if I see him first!"

"Oh, come, come—don't you see that all this will put Rollo on his feet too? You didn't think I'd forget a pal, did you? Why Ruth, it won't be any time before you and Rollo—"

She leaned over and took his hand again. "Willum—don't. Don't say any more until I tell you—"

"Why Ruth—you aren't crying! Well, for—"

She nodded, her big brown eyes brimming. "You're darn right I am. Willum—I didn't want to tell you—but darn it—I've got to—"

Bill had forgotten how pretty she was, with her lovely pink skin and her round brown eyes, soft and appealing now, brimming with tears.

He squeezed her hand, comfortingly, and the tears overflowed, rolled past his cheek down his cheeks. "It's about Rollo," she said, between sobs.

"Well, you don't have to worry about him. He'll be faithful to the judgment day—"

"That's just it—I'm not going to wait for any man till the judgment day. I'm getting tired of it. He has no right—"

"But Ruth, I was just telling you—this new deal with Keyes—"

She made a little face, and dabbed at her eyes with a wisp of handkerchief. "Bill, I'm trying to tell you, and you keep interrupting. Rollo's a good kid—I'm crazy about Rollo—but he put me off too long. I've lost interest. Willum, I've lost my fine enthusiasm for being Mrs. Rollo Keyes—"

"What? Oh, now, Ruth—you wouldn't go back on Rollo—"

"Go back on him! Would you call it that, when I've sat around waiting on him for a year and a half, getting gray hair—and now you tell me he'll wait till the judgment day. It's a match," she murmured, laughing and crying at the same time.

"Don't be absurd, Ruth—"

"Absurd! I was never so serious in my life. Willum, we're such old friends, I can tell you. I could tell you anything. I do know why I fell for you the first time I ever saw you—"

"My fatal beauty," he laughed, but the laugh was hollow. He wriggled uneasily. "Why didn't the waiter come? Gosh, it's hot in here—"

"Not just yet—wait till I finish. Willum, Oh, I know what you'll say—but I don't care. I'm going to tell you the truth. Bill, when I got married it's going to be for one of two things—love—or money. A whole lot of money. Go—call me a gold-digger!" She gulped, and two more tears rolled down her cheeks.

"So you don't love Rollo," he said slowly.

"I never said I did."

"But he thinks you do—he thinks the world and all of you, Ruth. Don't you think you could ever—"

"I wish you hadn't told me—"

She came and stood beside him, her lovely face close to his. "But there's one else I could tell it to. Willum—nobody at all. You've got to help me out of this. I don't know what to do. Oh, darn that waiter—always poking his ugly mug in here—come up to my room where we can talk—"

"But I couldn't tonight, Ruth—"

"Some other girl—I know—"

"Two other girls," he smiled, and looked at his watch. "I've got to meet a fellow in fifteen minutes and I ought to dash up to the hotel and dress first—"

"You look very beautiful now—"

"Just time to put you in a taxi and send you home—"

"But when am I going to see you again, Willum? You know what Rollo is when he gets his mind on anything—you've got to help me. I haven't anybody else. Tomorrow come tomorrow—"

"I couldn't tomorrow—"

"Willum, are you trying to ditch me?"

"No, but I couldn't come then. The day after—will that do?"

"I suppose so, bye-bye, Willum, honey—see you Friday!"

The taxi chugged away, her bright face at the window blurred and was gone.

Slowly he walked to the hotel, buying all the evening papers on the way. One of them might have a picture of Joan.

The Farley's dinner was over early, thank goodness. Joan came in yawning, although it was just half past ten. "Ooh, I'm sleepy. They're the dullest people I ever met in my life. But, oh, my friends of the Barstows, so we had to go. I'm dead for sleep. So's Curtis. He's tired he's cross—Curtis—"

She laughed unsteadily. "Can you imagine Curtis being cross, Maisie?"

"Well, most men get that way once in a while—"

"Yes, but Curtis isn't most men! You know it sort of strikes me funny in a way. I'm almost glad he does get cross—shows he's got his failings like me. It almost scares me sometimes—he's so good. And the things his mother tells about him! He's certainly been a wonderful son to her—"

"Why don't you go to bed if you're sleepy?" Maisie asked sensibly. "The one night you could get a little rest, you stand around and talk!"

"But I wanted to tell you about the weekend with Maisie, would you be very lonely if I went up to the cabin with Curtis—"

"If you want?"

"Oh, Maisie—you do look so funny!" Joan dropped into the rocker, and shook with laughter. "Oh, dear—I'm so tired I'm foolish. The cabin in the Santa Cruz mountains where we were at Thanksgiving. Mrs. Barstow and Mrs. Cunningham, I think—some friend of hers anyway—and another couple, the Laids, I believe. Won't it be great? A whole week-end, and not a formal dinner. Go—call me again, and yawned. "I hope we have lots of picnics—you won't be lonely, Maisie?"

Maisie beamed. "Well, if that don't work out just fine. Here I had let her from Gerald, that's my old boy's friend, and he's coming to their wedding anniversary on Saturday. They're going to have quite a time. I was thinking I might go. I've never even seen little Geraldine—imagine me a grandmother!—an! I suppose I can put up with Alice—that's Gerald's wife. She's a couple of days, though what he ever in that girl, piano legs, an' a voice like a foghorn—"

Packing. The small flat was in an uproar. Packages, Expressmen. Delivery boys were waiting for six months at the North Pole instead of three days at Stockton. Gifts for baby Geraldine. Gifts for Gerald. Gifts for the despised Alice. She'd never make the train to—

"I never said I did."

"But he thinks you do—he thinks the world and all of you, Ruth. Don't you think you could ever—"

"I wish you hadn't told me—"

She came and stood beside him, her lovely face close to his. "But there's one else I could tell it to. Willum—nobody at all. You've got to help me out of this. I don't know what to do. Oh, darn that waiter—always poking his ugly mug in here—come up to my room where we can talk—"

The film moves at breakneck speed embracing some of the most remarkable action shots ever caught by the camera. Spectacular episodes include an earthquake, a disastrous fire and a great flood highlight the story. Bill Allen, ace cameraman, and Jane Mallory, newspaper sob sister, meet after a broken romance while he is "shooting" the Mississippi floods near her home. Realizing Bill is the man she really loves, Jane decides to break with her fiancé, Hal Caldwell. However, when Bill releases pictures of a defective dam, implicating Hal, Jane decides to jilt him.

Her last assignment, to cover a notorious gang murder, results in Jane's being held prisoner by the gunmen. Bill and Hal hurry to the rescue, only to endanger their own lives. During a police battle with the gangsters on roof tops, Jane sends her newspaper bulletins of the proceedings while Bill "shoots" the action, a climax check full of gripping drama.

AT THE GRAND

Hog-judging scenes in which the 900-pound Blue Boy competes with other giant porkers under the anxious eyes of Will Rodgers provide some of the big laughs in Fox Film's all-star production, "State Fair," current at the Grand Theatre. Janet Gaynor, Will Rogers, Lew Ayres, Sally Eilers, Norman Foster, Louise Dresser, Frank Craven and Victor Jory constitute the all-star cast.

AT THE CLIFTONA

Thrills run rampant and romance progresses at a mile-a-minute pace in "Headline Shooter," RKO-Radio Pictures' realistic melodrama of a daring newsreel cameraman, which opened Sunday at the Cliftona Theatre with William Gargan and Frances Dee heading a commendable cast.

PLAN TO LIFT FARM PRICES TO MEET INDUSTRIAL GAINS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—Extension of the Administration's cotton loan plan to apply to other agricultural commodities is being pushed rapidly. Continuous conferences are being held with the purpose of making the plan operative as to all possible crops prior to December 1. As in the case of the cotton loan plan, it will be definitely linked with the acreage reduction program to guard the Government against monetary losses, as well as to render more certain advanced prices for all crops to be affected.

The primary purpose is materially to increase farm prices during the period when the largest proportion of crops will be marketed and to bring farm prices at once to a level commensurate with increases in the prices of industrial products. The substantial credits to be extended to farmers will reflect the Administration's own confidence in its drive for recovery and remove its efforts from the realm of price fixing or stabilization.

The cotton loan plan is designed to put a "bottom" under cotton prices by offering loans to cotton growers up to 10 cents a pound on all cotton held by them, provided they agree to join the Government in production-control plans for next year. Through this plan farm officials hope to reflect at once gains in the prices they expect to come later from the reduction of acreage. Rising prices are regarded as essential. Farmers are in many cases without resources to delay selling for any extended period beyond harvest time, or even to incur the expense of harvesting.

The next farm commodities to be included in the extension of the cotton loan plan are hogs and corn. This plan will be ready within a week. It will supplement the emergency pig and corn purchasing program, which expired September 26. That had been characterized as purely an emergency measure to help out farmers with shortages of feed as result of drought.

Agricultural Administrator Peck said that the extent of which the new plan will be applied to wheat depends upon what representatives of wheat producers propose. The wheat-production control campaign was completed September 26. Benefit payments up to $90,000,000 are to be distributed to growers who pledged acreage reduction.

What a world! Without people it would be too lonely; yet all of its woe is caused by people.

Neglect of Common Cold Leads to Complications

Now Is the Time of Year When This Affliction Is Prevalent; Negligence Dangerous

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States senator from New York
Former Commissioner of Health,
New York City

THIS is the time of year when the "common cold" is a daily affliction in every family. It is most prevalent during the fall and winter months but may occur at any time when the weather is changeable and persons are careless about their health habits. It is indeed an uncomfortable ailment and often leads to serious and prolonged illness.

It is probable that few diseases have received as much attention as the common cold, but it is not to be overlooked. A cold is an infectious disease. It spreads quickly from one individual to another. This is especially true in crowds and in poorly ventilated meeting places. A victim of a cold should avoid crowded places and take all the necessary precautions to guard his neighbors from contracting the infection.

Complications Dangerous

Too few persons realize the dangers associated with the common cold. They neglect the condition or resort to patent remedies. Often they seek medical advice after the "cold" has had its damaging effect upon the body. May I warn all my readers against carelessness and negligence of the common cold. This minor yet sometimes serious disease may lead to sinus disease, ear and throat infections, rheumatism, heart and kidney disease, arthritis, neuritis, and a host of other disabling infections.

My advice is always to respect a cold and give it the necessary attention. Guard yourself and others. Go to bed if you do not feel well. Bear in mind that one or two days in bed may be sufficient to overcome the primary infection and may save you from some serious complication.

Never delay calling your doctor if you have a cough and, despite rest in bed, you do not show improvement. It is best to receive the necessary medicine and advice that will insure a rapid and safe recovery. Always remember that a prolonged cold is a serious menace to health and should receive the same attention that other infections require.

Answers to Health Queries

Miss B. H. Q.—I am only twenty-two years of age and wish to do something about my hair. It is turning gray very fast. What would you advise?

A.—Nothing can be done to restore the color to the hair once it has started to turn gray. However, you might try improving your general health by eating of well balanced diet, etc. The condition of the hair as well as that of the skin depends upon the general health. For further particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

Don't Forget Real Bayer Aspirin Starts "Taking Hold" in Few Minutes

Here is quicker relief from pain—the fastest safe relief, it is scientifically known. This is due to a scientific discovery by which BAYER Aspirin starts "taking hold" of pain a few minutes after taking.

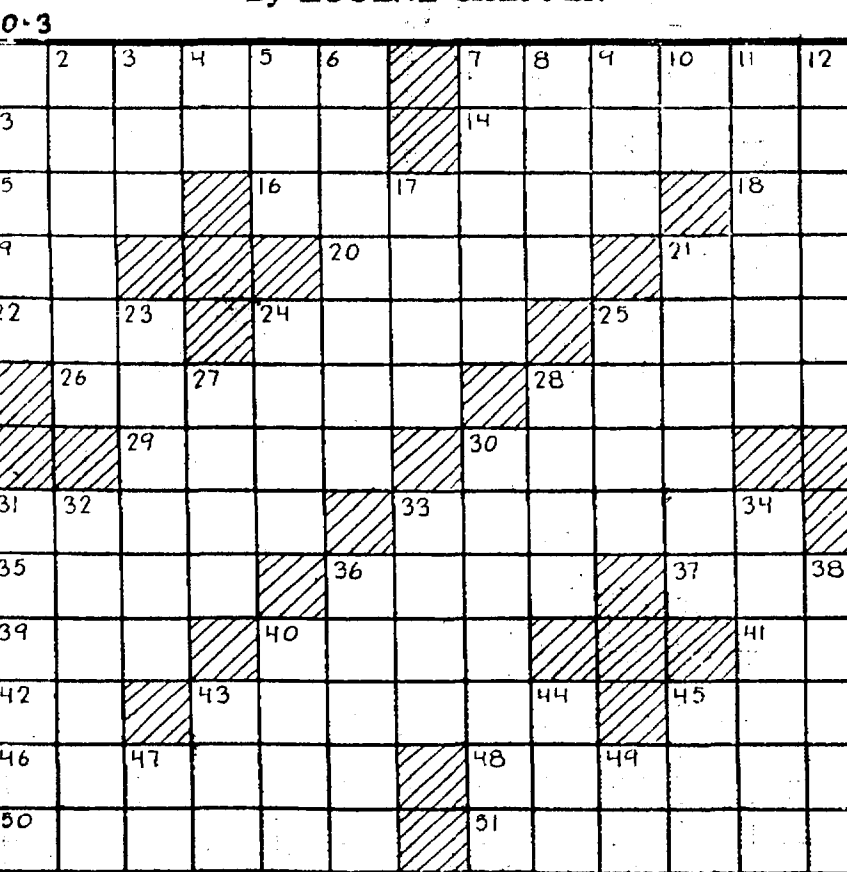

The illustration of the glass here tells the story. A Bayer tablet starts to disintegrate or dissolve—go to work almost instantly. This means quick relief from pain—fewer lost hours from headache, neuritis, rheumatism. And safe relief. For genuine Bayer Aspirin does not harm the heart.

When you buy, see that you get the genuine Bayer Aspirin. The best way is never to ask for aspirin by the name "aspirin" alone. But if you want Bayer Aspirin, quick relief always to say "BAYER Aspirin."

Despite repeated State Department denials, Sir John Simon, in an official note, reminded the United States of this pledge.

So if the State Department handled war debt discussions now, it would lay itself open to another British reminder. The Treasury, on the other hand, can pretend to ignore completely the Lausanne commitment.

Merry-Go-Round Oklahoma friends of former Secretary of War Pat Hurley have launched a quiet boomlet to run him for governor next year.

Will Rogers Picks A Story For This Spot By WILL ROGERS THE reason why people get disgraced by what their little kids say to the neighbors is that the kids haven't any better sense than to tell the truth.

Arthur was a kid like that. One day he was with his parents for a Saturday visiting some friends in the country. At dinner the kid was hungry. The older folks got interested in talking about bridge and farm relief, and they almost forgot Arthur. But the hostess wanted to be nice, when the meal was over, and she stepped over to help Arthur out of his chair. He was kinda crowded in between two others at a corner of the table.

"Did you have plenty of room, Arthur?" she says. "Yes, plenty," he says. "I've got some room left over. About enough room for another piece of cake, I reckon."

ANSWERS, QUERIES CONCERNING NRA

Q. Will my Blue Eagle be withdrawn if I am unable to comply with all the provisions of the permanent code of my industry?

A. Permanent codes provide the manner of their administration. Any appeal for exceptions to provisions of administration must be made to the administrative body established in the code.

Q. There are two firms in my town which have not signed the President's agreement. What do you advise?

A. Some have not signed because they do not understand the purposes, others because they feel they cannot. In any event, they deserve no critical comment until their cases have been considered by the local compliance board. A dependable method has been designed and is operated to take care of any case of any kind without detriment to any employer who wants recovery.

Q. Owners of small establishments here complain they are "being told" they may work only 54 hours per week. Is this correct?

A. No. The President's Reemployment Agreement places no limitation on hours in towns of less than 2,500 population.

Q. When an employer signed the President's Reemployment Agreement, is he permitted to add this clause: "Provided that we waive no constitutional right or immunity?"

A. No. There can be no modifications or "interpretations" except the regularly authorized "consent clause" referring to substitutions or to labor contracts made prior to signing. Ultimately exactions will be prosecuted.

Q. I am an American citizen living abroad, engaged in importing American products. Am I entitled to the Blue Eagle?

A. Yes; provided your importations are manufactured by firms who are NRA members, and provided further, you have yourself signed the President's Reemployment Agreement and are living up to it.

'Round The Town NEWS OF HOMES AND HOME FOLKS

VOL. 4. NO. 40

Published by STEVENSON'S

Tuesday, October 3, 1933

There'd no two ways about it, when you buy an Estate Heatrola you've made an investment. For instance, away back when they were new on the market, we installed one for a chap south of Roundtown. He has used it all of these years and sold it, just a few days ago, for a little more than one-third of the present price of the new ones. As the boys say, "Wasn't that sumpin'?" A little classified ad, was run in the local paper that our customer had an Estate Heatrola for sale. FIVE PROSPECTS answered that little ad. Folks know that when it's an Estate it's a GENUINE HEATROLA.

Speaking of Heatrolas, another chap married a girl that has had an Estate in her home. The young folks are moving into their own home, in another city, but they are taking a new Heatrola with them. Pretty good evidence, isn't it, that the young lady was perfectly satisfied with results obtained from the Heatrola in her old home?

And still speaking of Heatrolas, it was a pleasure for us to take an old Estate Hot-Storm heater out of a home near New Holland last week and replace it with the latest model of the Estate Heatrola. The man-of-the-house felt that he was not taking any chances in buying another Estate for the old one—which was the "daddy" of the Heatrola for he knew what a fine thing the INTENSIFIRE AIR-DUCT is and it can be found only on the genuine Heatrola. We'll make things HOT for this family this winter!

One of the "lightest" shipments that has ever arrived at our store came in last week. It was a large shipment of floor and table lamps (lights), all medium priced and of beautiful designs. Now that we're all hunting the indoors for the winter, why not provide your home with some new lamps? And it wouldn't be a bad idea to consider some Christmas presents from our stock, either.

While you are "doing" the Pumpkin Show, you are invited to call at our store and see what the "Missus" has in store for you. See the "parlor" of grandma's time, the "sitting" room of mother's day, and the present day living room. The Boss (?) has gone to a lot of trouble in preparing and gathering the materials, so we hope you'll come around and enjoy it.

We just can't resist talking of Estate products, so we just want to ask our country friends to see this make of coal range the Heatrola Range. We believe that you will agree that it is a remarkable "buy" for $99.50. City folks, and country folks desiring gas—Pyrofax—are invited to look at our gas ranges in the Estate line.

So long; we'll be seeing you at the Pumpkin Show?
